

Committee to oversee refugee fund

Support for the plight of refugees from the southeast Asia country of Vietnam continues to grow in the Minden area. Over 25 people attended a meeting Thursday evening to prepare plans for raising funds to sponsor a family.

Most churches in the area, including congregations from Carnarvon, Norland, Kinmount and Coboconk, among others, were represented at the meeting. Spokesmen for the various congregations indicated a great deal of support within their churches. Area service clubs have also indicated an interest in supporting the project.

A steering committee was established at the meeting to co-ordinate the activities. Members of the committee were requested to return to their parishes and get a firm commitment of support so the committee will have an indication of financial and material assistance which will be available.

The steering committee is under the direction of Reverend Douglas Miller of the Minden United Church.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the drive to sponsor a family had become an ecumenical effort with support coming from almost all churches in the area as well as groups and individuals outside of the church community. Reverend Miller noted that all administration expenses are being absorbed by the churches and any funds donated would go completely to the support of the family.

It was also pointed out at the meeting that to enable donors to claim their cash gifts as income tax deductions, receipts will be issued by the churches. Miller said he hoped that this in no way would discourage residents who do not belong to a congregation from giving. He said that while the churches were spear-heading this drive, it was really a community effort, and that he hopes many members of the community would participate.

Early this week Reverend Miller added that arrangements had been made with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Toronto Dominion bank in Minden for the acceptance of donations. He said that those who do not want to give through a church, or find it more convenient to do so at the banks, will then have an opportunity to participate. He noted that donors giving at the banks will receive a receipt for income tax purposes in the mail.

Those in attendance Thursday evening seemed to be enthusiastically in support of the project to sponsor a family of refugees. A cottage in the Coboconk area was offered for a full year for the family if a residence in or close to the community cannot be found. Other offers of furniture, clothing, household goods and cash, as well as moral support for the project were also offered by those in attendance.

Reverend Miller told the gathering that a number of people have expressed concern to him about the bringing of the refugees to Canada and the Haliburton area in particular. Miller said he could understand the concerns in economic and social terms but felt the plight of the "boat people" in relation to the prosperity of this country demanded that we do something. He expressed the hope that the reservations raised by some were not based on racial grounds.

Members of the steering committee are expected to meet again August 2 to map further plans for the refugee sponsorship.

Three refugee families for Haliburton

At least three families of 'boat people' will be adopted by Haliburton village churches in the near future, according to Len Creelman.

Mr. Creelman, a member of the central committee for the adoption of the families said that the United Church has made an application for a family while the Anglican Church has requested two families as well as a few individuals if possible.

"The sponsorship of the families is coming directly from the churches, the central committee will be used as an information source," he said.

A spokesman from Operation Lifeline, of Toronto, told a crowd of 25 Thursday night, the government may let 25,000 refugees immigrate over the next year because of the individual sponsorship programs underway.

The churches and citizens in the Wilberforce area are also hoping to sponsor a family.

As yet the group has only made application according to Anglican Minister Rev. Canon G. Moore Smith.

Man drowns in 8" of water

A Haliburton County man drowned last Friday night when he fell into a beaver pond and could not lift himself out because of a back injury.

Dead is Petrol Miscio, 54 of R.R. 2 Minden.

Mr. Miscio was apparently gathering minnows when the accident happened.

His son found him in about eight inches of water.

Dr. H.E. Good attended the scene but did not request a post mortem or inquest.

Investigation by Provincial Constable Mike Maher and Corporal Ron Foran.

Boy hit by car

A 12 year old boy was killed when he ran directly in front of an oncoming car last Sunday evening on Highway 35 near Moores Falls.

Dead is William Gardin Park, of Lionelle St. in Willowdale.

The boy was walking with his six year old brother on the west side of the highway when he ran across the road and was hit by a northbound car driven by Kenneth Mantle, 21 of R.R. 1 Norland.

The 1976 car received a damage estimate of $1,000.

Coroner Dr. H.E. Good, of Haliburton, attended the scene but requested no post mortem or inquest.

Death was caused by a fractured skull.

Investigation by Provincial Constable Reg Eveligh and Corporal Ron Foran.

Inspect senior apartments this month

A tenant placement meeting will be held at the end of July in Lindsay for the applicants interested in living in Minden's new senior citizen's apartments, according to spokesman for the Victoria County Housing Authority.

In a telephone interview, Mary Jane Huffman said that 40 applications have been received but no confirmations of acceptance have been made as yet.

"Some people have cancelled out because they're not interested anymore or they can't look after themselves any longer, so the list will be cut down considerably," she explained.

The first inspection of the 19-apartment building is slated for the end of July. Representatives from Ontario Housing Corporation, Victoria County Housing Authority and the contractors will check the building in this pre-takeover inspection, Miss Huffman said.

If no unforeseen problems emerge, the apartments should be ready for mid-August leasing, Miss Huffman estimated.

It is still not too late to apply for residence as application forms should be available at the Minden municipal offices, Miss Huffman said.

FROM THE CHAMBER

By Bob Stinson

Area maps now available

We tried to have the new Haliburton Highlands Maps available by the beginning of July but didn't quite make it. They are however available now and are retailing for 25¢ each. We will be calling around to most of our members with a supply of these available for those who wish to handle them. Any member who wishes to pick some up in the meantime may obtain them either at the Chamber "Welcome Centre" in Minden, the Caboose info centre in Haliburton, or the Log School House info centre on highway 38 in Cardiff.

The full colour maps not only provide an excellent guide in travelling about the county, but contain a number of sightseeing tours that visitors will enjoy. Look for them with the new Haliburton logo on the cover.

Lots of Publicity this week

The Toronto Globe and Mail featured an excellent full page article on the Haliburton Highlands in their entertainment section last Friday. The content expounded on the beautiful environment to be enjoyed here along with some interesting history of our origins.

The Star on Saturday carried a full page in their Family section about Camp White Pine and Towhee. This article of course mentions that this was the location for the movie "Meatballs" which is now enjoying such a high degree of success. Crowds of local residents are still lining up to see this film here and the reports are that not only did they recognize many of their friends -- they also enjoyed the movie.

The Star carried another article on Saturday that was not quite so enjoyable to read. The front page of the INSIGHT section was devoted to analysing President Carter's Energy Plan. Writer Ross Howard sees nothing but disaster in the effects on our environment that we can expect if this plan is followed. A fantastic amount of pressure is going to have to be applied by our governments, and environmental interests in the U.S. to prevent this happening.

What's New

The Wagon Wheel Motel on highway 35 south of Minden is under new ownership. Norma Lougheed and her daughter Jodi have moved here from Newmarket to take on this new venture and we heartily welcome them to our business community and wish them much success. Norma, incidentally, is a sister of Eileen Shapiro, who along with her husband Joe operate Shoes & Leather and Jadek Sports.

Not exactly new, because they are well underway by now is Camp Illahee on the former site of Drag Lake Lodge. The official opening of the camp was held on Saturday however, with participation of both representatives of the Family Services Association of Metropolitan Toronto and the campers themselves. Camp Director Dave Sands was applauded several times for providing the drive behind the scenes that has created this very worth while facility. Many children with medical problems that kept them home can now enjoy camp life, like their friends, for the first time.

Also not new is Stan's Texaco on highway 121 just east of Haliburton Village but their facilities are. A disastrous fire destroyed their entire premises last Spring, but within a week the site was cleared and a trailer was in place beside the pumps. The trailer is now moved and the new garage is in full use. The old familiar "Gas and Gab" location is now equipped better than ever before and we wish Bob and Karen continued success.

Fill up

As we reach the middle of our Summer Season the Travel Counsellors are getting reports of "Full Up" from all operators. With facilities taxed to the limit and employees in many cases over worked at the moment -- it's a good time to remind ourselves to "Treat Our Visitors Royally." We want them to come back again and again, scenery is not our only attraction, it should also be our facilities.

Bluett's get the gold

Alfred and Jean Bluett, of Kinmount, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on July 14.

The couple were joined by their family and friends including the best man and matron of honor from their wedding.

They both came to Canada from England, he arriving in 1923 and Mrs. Bluett, nee Marten, in 1925. They met in Canada and were married on July 16, 1929.

Before immigrating to Canada, Mr. Bluett served as honor guard for King George and the present Queen Mother. In the late 1930's he was in the Toronto Royal Regiment.

For 23 years he worked for the Canadian National Railroad and also served more than five years in World War II.

The couple have five children, Joan Pritchard, of Minden, Robert of Norwood and Margaret, William and George of Toronto.

Also, they have 16 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The immediate family treated the couple to supper at Mr. Fogg's and then returned to Kinmount for an enjoyable get-together with other family members and friends.

Those golden years

Alfred and Jean Bluett had a great celebration on their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Joining in the festivities were the best man and matron of honour from the original wedding party. As well as family and friends. Joan Pritchard, far left, and her husband Ed, far right, give the couple affectionate hugs.

History on display

In an effort to establish a historical display in the Lutterworth Municipal Office, organizers are asking people interested in loaning articles get in touch with them.

The display would be located in the halls and in part of the library in the office on Highway 35.

The articles that are loaned to the township will be described on cards and the donor's name will be noted.

Organizers say that it will be simple to reclaim items at any time for any reason as receipts of the loan will be given to the donors.

For information about the project or for pick-up of articles phone Sandy Valentine at 454-3792 or

The Ministry of Natural Resources, through the Leslie M. Frost Centre in Dorset, is providing an ideal opportunity for permanent and seasonal residents to become better acquainted with the natural world around us.

The centre has established a program of interpretive walks through the forests in the immediate area of the centre. Led by a guide, the individuals taking part learn the identity of many of the plants and trees in the bush. The evolution of the forest is explained, as is the theory that through planned cutting the life and utility of our forest resources can be enhanced.

The walks take place each Thursday with one leaving the visitor centre at 10 a.m. and the second at 1:30 p.m. A tour of an operating sawmill is also offered on Wednesday.

A spokesman at the centre has indicated that if there is enough interest shown by the public, the programs may be expanded in the future. It was pointed out that response so far this year has been limited, although those who do take part in the programs usually find them interesting as well as educational.

We here in Haliburton find ourselves situated in a setting that abounds with an enormous variety of plant and animal life. In many ways our understanding and appreciation of the natural forces around us are vital to our economic well-being. Not only through the countless tourists and seasonal residents attracted to the area by the wilderness setting, but through the natural resources, such as timber, that we are able to harvest from the forests.

While this may be reason enough to have an appreciation of the natural world we live in, the personal satisfaction of being closer to nature should be an added incentive for us to get out and learn.

The programs currently underway at the Frost centre, and those proposed for the future deserve our support. The staff at the centre, and indeed at the local ministry office, have the knowledge and expertise that will enable us to understand the natural forces around us. We are limiting our own horizons and those of our children if we do not encourage and support these programs.

Mainstream Canada

Trust is the Issue

By W. Roger Worth

Canadians are having a difficult time trusting business people these days, and with good reason.

In the past, consumers were confident the local butcher wasn't about to tip the scales with his finger. The meat cutter, in many cases, was a personal friend, or at least an acquaintance.

Now, consumers have to contend with supermarket chains caught mixing low-priced pork with beef, coolly selling the concoction at higher-than-high beef prices.

Fertilizer companies think nothing of short-changing their customers by selling underweight products, some as much as 10 pounds less than the amount indicated.

Many large companies have also taken advantage of the move to the metric system, hiking prices by inordinate amounts to increase profit margins.

Even the government operated post office joined the trend when it announced most mailing costs would not rise when it changed to metric, neatly evading the fact that a lot of customers are going to pay considerably more money for the service.

Then there's the quality issue.

The number of product recalls has increased so dramatically that the Canadian public now takes them for granted.

In fact, the automotive companies are now recalling more cars than they sell every year.

Canadians have come a long way from the good old days when a Model A ran for 10 years, developing few problems that couldn't be overcome with a little binder twine and a recycled wad of chewing gum.

The list goes on.

The aircraft industry and government authorities apparently feel it's not important to inform the flying public that 506 faulty engine mounts have been found on commercial jets during a six year period.

Soft drink manufacturers blanket the country with exploding pop bottles, then balk when Ottawa asks them nicely to stop using the containers. At least one manufacturer, it seems, wants a direct order from the government before he will act.

Yet it's beleaguered smaller retailers, car dealers, travel agents and other independent entrepreneurs on the firing line who bear the brunt of public complaints about these abuses. Further, these smaller businesses are forced to accept such

REPORT FROM QUEEN'S PARK

By John Eakins, M.P.P.

Ministry of Natural Resources offices throughout the province frequently receive telephone calls or visits from people who want advice about dealing with animals or birds which have been hurt or captured in some way.

Often the response which they receive from the ministry official is disappointing. Most members of the ministry joined the staff because of an abiding interest in true conservation and a love of all the things of nature. However, they know that what people are sometimes motivated to do by sentiment or emotion is not necessarily the wisest course. This is particularly true in the case of 'foundling' wild animals, especially the 'cute' young ones.

Almost invariably a caller is told to place the fawn, the baby rabbit or the little bird as close to its original nest or hiding place as possible, then go away and leave it alone. They are advised not to stay in the vicinity waiting for the mother to return, or until the little creature seems able to take care of itself.

The primary reason for leaving the area is to allow the mother time and privacy to return. For example, if a fawn is returned to the hayfield where it had been disturbed by the mower, the doe will probably be in the vicinity and not too far away. However, she will not return to her young one if people or machines are in the area. In fact, some hours may go by - it may even be after dark - before she ventures forth.

The best advice given to people by those who are concerned with the protection of wildlife is that if you find animals or birds - especially young ones - abandoned or apparently lost, you should leave them alone. Almost invariably they become reunited with their 'families' if given time and privacy to do so. Animals or birds who appear injured or sick will usually either improve on their own, or death will come. If this happens, it is probable that it would have been inevitable even with the best of treatment.

Ministry of Natural Resources' staff advise particular caution in dealing with an apparently sick or injured creature. Although not every 'sick' animal is rabid, the possibility cannot be overlooked. If an animal is unusually tame, or acts sickly or aggressively, leave it alone - for your own sake.

The advice offered by Ministry officials is neither callous nor unfeeling. It is based on the experience and knowledge of the people whose main job is the protection of our wildlife heritage.

Coloured leaves in June

by Hal Burton

I could tell as soon as she stepped off the bus that Sunday afternoon with a "Save the Whales" T shirt on, a pair of dusty old sandals and a duffel bag that I wasn't going to like her. Not, mind you, that I am one to jump to snap decisions or anything as perjurious as that.

Nor do I have anything against the whales. As a matter of fact I hold them in high esteem. If, however, your aim is to save the whales, then by all means save the whales, which is not, I can assure you, the same as wearing a shirt on which is inscribed in bold letters the message I previously ascribed to her chest.

It was June. Early June. "Where are the coloured leaves?" she, from the big city, demanded to know once we had exchanged peasantries.

My snap decision confirmed, I attempted to explain to our guest that the leaves only turned colour in the fall, but she seemed little interested in my explanation and sort of drifted over to the roadster and climbed in. (At this point, I must admit, I toyed with the idea of showing her some property Hydro had been spraying lately in order to satisfy her curiosity about coloured leaves. However I stifled my urge and took my place behind the wheel for the ride home.)

The trip was sort of a one sided monologue with her doing most of the talking. Seems she, a distant niece, was here for a few weeks relaxation. She claimed to be in search of flora and fauna and I told her I'd never heard of them but they could possibly be found in the bush. Taking a healthy drag on her Export A, she said it was fresh air she hankered for and a taste of the rural experience.

I reckoned the air was most always fresh and our family was as experienced rurally as any in the county.

Arriving at the home, the remaining members of the family were as suitably impressed as I. However, never ones to turn a lost soul out into a storm, we took her in warmly, welcoming her to our house and she stayed. Oh how she wouldn't eat eggs or butter and told us why every chance she got. Each meal became a lecture on why what we were eating was not good for us.

She also said there wasn't much value in TV these days but seemed to be a touch upset when she realized that we couldn't get Johnny Carson. She said she was either a proletarian or a patriot, one of the two. I think she also said she was a vegetarian, in addition to not eating meat.

She, as she was wont to claim at the drop of a suggestion, was as pure in her consumption, as the driven snow. I was tempted to add that she might, like the snow, drift on, but caught the razor sharp glance from the missus that froze my tongue in its place.

It was endurance for two whole weeks. Even Uncle Bernard, who is pretty tolerant of most anyone or anything, was found one day on the porch clicking his dentures in abject frustration. He said nothing, but I knew what he was thinking and when our eyes met briefly a silicone of thought shot between us. That is the closest I've been to the crusty old codger in years. Adversity makes strange bedfellows, I think they say.

The day before she was about to return to the city, having her quota of fresh air and then some, Aunt Mary planned to treat us all to supper at the turkey social. It was to be a goodbye party and pleasant evening out for all of us who were feeling a might cramped. However, Mary forgot one thing.

"Turkey supper!" the guest shouted when told of the plans. "Turkey is meat and I will not tolerate the consumption of meat. I just don't know how anyone can eat meat," she said warming to her topic as we edged toward the door. "I find it totally inhumane. Meat," she sputtered almost beside herself in self-righteous zeal, "eating turkey for me would be as barbaric as...cannibalism."

"For once," I commented quickly as we all slipped out the door, "I couldn't agree with you more. I couldn't agree with you more."

We had a lovely supper and when we returned the TV was unaccountably warm, there were several Cokes missing from the ice box and the ash tray was full.

She left the next day and as I drove her to the bus depot I took a small detour over to where Hydro had been working a couple of weeks earlier. I commented, as we motored by, that winter must not be far off as the leaves were showing the first touches of colour. Excitedly she made me stop the car and insisted that I take her picture standing among the dead foliage.

Now we were both happy. She had her leaves and I had her leave.

ploding pop bottles, then balk when Ottawa asks them nicely to stop using the containers. At least one manufacturer, it seems, wants a direct order from the government before he will act.

Yet it's beleaguered smaller retailers, car dealers, travel agents and other independent entrepreneurs on the firing line who bear the brunt of public complaints about these abuses.

Further, these smaller businesses are forced to accept such criticism, particularly if they operate by the credo that "the customer is always right."

What's to be done?

It's time all business people - specifically, the executives of major companies - provided straightforward answers to the public on quality and pricing policies.

By evading or stonewalling contentious issues, Canada's corporate elite are slowly but surely eroding public confidence in the free-enterprise system.

An opportunity to come a little closer to nature

One of the great love stories of the 1970's has to be our growing attraction to things natural. The "back to the land" philosophy is booming as we seemingly search for a tranquility in simpler things. That quest has led many individuals to attempt to find their peace in natural surroundings.

We find ourselves charging off into the bush to commune with nature, expecting rabbits and brown-eyed fawns to eat from our hands, otters frolic in a pool. We try to be one with the great mystery that is nature.

The trouble is that it takes more than a desire to appreciate and become a part of the natural world around us. Chances are the neophyte explorer will be driven from the bush by the hordes of biting insects, or find the natural kingdom is not as harmonious or subservient as he had been led to believe, or, pass, through the experience without realizing the significance of the things he sees, smell, touches, hears or tastes.

That is not to say that the desire to get a little closer to the natural rhythms of this world is not a desirable objective. However, like all goals, it requires a little preparation before it can be achieved.

One way to bridge the gap between urban ignorance and rural savvy is to spend some time in the bush with someone who knows.

The Ministry of Natural Resources offers that opportunity this summer at the Leslie M. Frost Centre, just south of Dorset, on Highway 35. Each Thursday at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. an experienced guide leads groups of visitors on an interpretive walk in and through the forests adjacent to the centre.

The walk takes about an hour and a half to complete, longer if the participants show a little more than the average interest in the things along the way. The guides offer explanations of various natural phenomena viewed along the trail. They identify tree and plant varieties, explain how the region was formed and how the forest is not an eternal fixture, but rather an evolving changing organism that is going through a life cycle as similar and dramatic as our own.

The walk includes some first hand experience as members of the group help to take a core sample from a tree to determine its age. At another location the hikers are invited to sample nature's bounty, tasting the wild cucumber root or stopping to raid a stand of raspberry canes.

The guides are young and obviously enthusiastic about their work. They enjoy answering the questions of the visitors and will readily admit when stumped. Their enthusiasm is quickly transmitted to those taking the tour and adults and youngsters alike show an eager willingness to learn more about the surroundings.

This is the second year the centre has encouraged the participation of the public through summer programs. According to one spokesman for the centre, the response has not been that good so far, a problem he traces to good weather (keeping people at their cottages) and the fact the program offerings were not that well known.

Since its inception, the Leslie Frost Resource Centre has been a location for study by ministry officials and school groups. Although those members of the public who were just passing by, and were curious enough to enquire, were not turned away, the facilities at the centre have been utilized mainly by students and staff members living in the 170 bed dormitory.

With the addition of a visitor services centre last year that has changed. The centre still caters to the groups which come for a week at a time, but a greater emphasis is being placed on programs for the casual visitor, the resident, cottager or tourist.

According to Barry Martin, an employee at the centre, one of the reasons for the change in emphasis was that programs like the interpretive walk are available in most areas of Ontario at provincial parks and conservation areas. Except for Algonquin to the north, the Haliburton area is without a formal provincial park and so programs like these were found to be lacking.

About 2000 travellers stopped last year at the visitor's centre, located just south of the main buildings. They either toured the facility to find out what it was all about or took part in programs similar to the interpretive hike being offered this year.

The program has been changing each year in an attempt to discover what interested the public most. If the reaction is encouraging it is likely the visitor services program at the centre will be expanded in the future. If there is enough demand the centre staff could tailor special programs for weekend activities or an all day excursion.

The centre welcomes individuals at regular tour times. Organized groups, such as camps, should contact the centre in advance. (See the big DEAL for times and dates.)

Larger visitor

The claw marks on the bark of a beech tree offer vivid proof to the fact that the forest is the home of the bear. As a counterpoint, shy but inquisitive chipmunks scurry through the underbrush as the visitors intrude in their domain.

What's the big DEAL

The big Deal is coming up in a week and a half.

The Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre will be presenting a special all-day educational program Monday, August 6.

Called the DEAL day, the project takes its name from the Direct Experience Approach to Learning concept. The day has been organized as part of the centre's recognition of the International Year of the Child.

According to the centre brochure, "The day will provide children 15 years of age and under with an opportunity to participate in an educational program designed especially for them." Included will be interpretive walks, informative talks a chance for some hands-on experience and interesting demonstrations.

Registration for the day is set for 9:30 a.m. with the program starting at 10 o'clock. It should be completed by 3 p.m. and the children are requested to bring their own lunches.

Children are invited to bring their parents, because it will be fun for them too. Parents are particularly requested to be on hand if the child is under eight years of age.

Other activities

Sawmill demonstration: each Wednesday during July and August from 1 to 3 p.m. Meet at the visitor services centre.

Guided interpretive walks: 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. each Thursday during July and August. Alternate activity is provided in case of rain. Meet at the visitor services centre.

Visitor centre: Open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. through to Labour Day. A guide on hand will answer questions on the area, brochures are available and a display outlining various aspects of the ministry's activity is on view.

Transition

To some it's a meadow, to others it is the first stages of a new forest. The interpretive nature walks at the Leslie Frost Resource Centre offers the visitor a new perspective on our natural surroundings. Guide Craig Gillespie, wearing the striped shirt, offers some interesting observation to the visitors.

First base grab Barry Shaw grabs the ball at first base, successfully cutting off a member of the Lindsay Junior team in a game at the Minden ball diamond July 20. The game saw the Minden Merchants hold onto a 4-3 lead to take the visitors. A home run midway through the game by Bernie Nichols, netted the local squad two runs. On Monday of this week the squad defeated Fenelon Falls 8-5 in a contest played in that community. This week the team entertains the Woodville team at the local ball diamond. The game has been moved to Thursday evening because of the Rotary Carnival.

Haliburton's bubble breaks - 2 losses last week

The Haliburton ladies lost two games in ladies softball league action last week. Early in the week the Haliburton ladies were able to maintain their hold on first place despite a loss Monday to Carnarvon and a second loss Tuesday at West Guilford. Carnarvon defeated the league leaders 13-11 with Marg Darby coming up with the win. Barb Dailey and Karen Eagers turned in outstanding games for the winners. On Tuesday West Guilford edged the Haliburton entry 8-

6. The Guilford team won a come-from-behind victory. They were trailing 6-3 going into the bottom half of the seventh inning. The team had two out and the bases were loaded. Bonnie Steven stepped to the plate and, saving the day for the team, cracked a grand slam homer. The winning pitcher for West Guilford was Nancy Binks. Nancy Maughan took both losses. Minden took a pair of games from Snowdon last week defeating the team 31-17 and 28-13 in games Tuesday and Wednesday evening. Carolyn Anderson hit two home runs for the Homestead ladies while Diane Warmes scored a single round-tripper. Patty Lou Vasey, recuperating from an earlier accident, was the winning pitcher in both contests while Audrey Vick took the losses. Carnarvon also won a pair of games from Wilberforce. Wednesday evening the score was 22-13 with Marg Darby claiming the win and Susan Robertson taking the loss. The score of the Thursday game is unavailable, however Belinda Brown was the winning pitcher for Carnarvon, with Judy Faul taking the loss. The league standings at the end of last week's play is listed below:

Haliburton County Ladies Softball League standings as of July 20:

Legion Carnival better than ever

Flag carrier This little girl carried a flag as part of the Legion carnival parade, last Wednesday night.

Last Wednesday, Haliburton Legion Branch 129 held its annual carnival and it was the best yet.

In the afternoon midway attractions kept many people (at least the kids) from relaxing at the beach.

Highlighting the carnival was the parade which brought out throngs of people.

Marching bands from Haliburton and Bracebridge Legion as well as an impressive police pipe band, delighted the crowd. After a strut around the town, the parade led everyone into the fairgrounds.

Many rides, candy floss, popcorn and games of chance were part of this year's midway.

Inside the curling club, legion members held more games of chance and a beer garden.

Also, more food. Freshly cooked hamburgers were on hand in case no one had enough candy apples, floss, carmel corn or popcorn.

Gamblin' blood Everybody was a gambler at the Legion carnival. With the many games to choose from no one had to go home with money in his pockets if he didn't want to.

Piper One of the many pipers taking part in the Legion's parade. The enjoyable music almost made everyone want to march along.

SENIOR LEAGUE

by Linda English

Hyland Crest has sure been buzzing lately. The maintenance men are busy preparing another original "surprise" float for the Minden Carnival parade. Mrs. Deumo and Mrs. Irene Burns have been spending their weekends lately in the Craft room making decorations. I'm sure that with everyone's efforts combined, we will again create a most delightful entry this year.

Saturday, July 14, Mr. Wilbert Sisson celebrated his birthday. Wilbert was presented with a cake by the kitchen staff & everyone joined together to sing Happy Birthday to Wilbert.

Monday was somewhat cooler, after a very hot and humid weekend. Everyone was in good spirits, and enjoyed their Fun & Fitness program in the morning.

After lunch, the ladies went to crafts to put the finishing touches to their projects in preparation for the Bazaar. Lemonade, tea and goodies were served after an afternoon of hard work.

Monday evening several residents made their way to the auditorium to view to very interesting movies.

The first film was called "The Fisherman". Two fishermen took us on a most amazing adventure. They showed us how to catch the big ones, and told us the history of the Bow Fin Bass, which is a real fighter. These fish grow up to 100 lbs., and we saw some real action when one fellow actually landed one.

The movie also gave us a look at amphibians such as alligators, frogs, and different species of fish which live in and around our lakes. This was a most enjoyable film and the men in particular were very enthused. It brought back some nice memories for Mr. McEachern who told me that he has landed a few big ones himself and has fished in every lake in Algonquin Park.

"The Shetland Experience" was all about the Scottish mainland. We had a look at the structures of the land and rock formations. The people are somewhat old fashioned and do things the old way, such as spinning their own yarn, knitting and making their own garments. The men entertain themselves by playing the fiddle, while the ladies make things with their hands. Due to the pipelines going through in 1974, there is more population now, better schools and housing. This also was a very enjoyable film for our residents, reminding them of the good old days.

Tuesday morning was a time of spiritual worship when Rev. Douglas Miller of the Minden United Church led the service in the Chapel. Mrs. Agnes Taylor played the organ for us to sing our praises to the Lord.

In the afternoon Doris Robertson called the numbers for a game of Bingo in the main lounge. Some lucky person won tokens which can be cashed in at the Tuck Shop.

Wednesday, July 18 was a special day for Miss Amelia Good, when she celebrated her birthday. We sang Happy Birthday and presented her with a nicely decorated cake at lunch time.

Later in the afternoon we held our annual Summer Bazaar. We welcomed many familiar faces among which were some very special guests. Mrs. Lily Rawlins, former activities director honoured us this week with her presence and drew the ticket on the Afghan Draw. Mrs. Vera Ward of Minden was the lucky winner. Also, Mrs. Elsie Bursey, former administrator of Hyland Crest, was here to lend a hand. It was nice to see Jackie Gostlin again. Jackie used to be employed in the activities department and has moved to Huntsville.

There were many handmade items to choose from and some homemade candy and baked goods. Many of our guests enjoyed a doughnut and a cool glass of lemonade before leaving. Special thanks to Lloyd and Evelyn Coleman, Betty Lonsdale, Winn Wilson, Florence Robb, Ellen Holden, Beryl Gilmore and Susan. These people are our dedicated volunteers who made our Bazaar a smashing success.

The ladies of the Harcourt Community Chapel brightened our day when they brought a most delicious lunch for our Thursday afternoon tea party. They served a variety of sandwiches, cakes, cookies and squares.

After the tea party, a few residents went to the Firehall at Minden to take a tour through the Archeology Museum. Everyone that went found this to be a most interesting experience. Before going home we went to Kawartha Dairy and treated ourselves to a tasty ice cream cone.

Friday morning we welcomed Mrs. Avery - a new resident, to Fun & Fitness. Fern Donnelly was here as usual to give us a hand.

Everyone was in good voice when we sang our good morning songs and found it easy to exercise their bodies to the music. We had a game of darts and ended the program with a fun game of Kick the Ball.

Grace Coburn accompanied by Lucille Clark led the sing song in the afternoon winding up another week of activity at Hyland Crest.

AROUND THE TOWN

by Jeanne Sears

Visitor from Yorkshire England with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stuckless is Miss Laycock.

At the afternoon Tea and Bazaar at Hyland Crest last Wednesday afternoon there was a draw made on an afghan with lucky winner being Vera Ward.

Sincere sympathy goes to the families and friends of the late Master Jason Horsley, Petrol Miscio and Robert McKnight, whose funerals were since last week.

There was a goodly crowd out to see the exhibits in the R.O.M. Museumobile parked beside the Fire Hall last Thursday. The driver was interesting to chat with, and he gave everyone a great welcome here and to come down to the Museum in Toronto. Thanks Jim Breeze!

Peter Courtney of Toronto was a weekend guest with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Roy Courtney.

All their friends send good wishes to these people who are in hospital, or have just come home, included are Harold Mercer, Olive Ward at St. Joseph's Peterborough and Mrs. Bill Moore.

There was a busy time on Saturday at St. Paul's Anglican Church Fair with baking going quickly, and bazaar and thrift shop and many other activities for everyone. The noonhour luncheon had a good crowd there and on the raffle of the lovely quilt winner was Norma Plunkett or R.R. 2 Cavan.

We notice that people are now using County Road 2 from our village, south across the bridge and this comes out on Highway 35 near Moore's Falls.

Gerald Coulter of Toronto enjoyed a weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Angus Coulter.

Wed., July 25, 1979

Helen and Jim Burton are home again after attending her nephew's wedding at Auburn Heights, Michigan; outside, instead of throwing confetti, tiny cups of fine bird seed were thrown and the birds would later clean this up. Good idea!

Garnet Moore of Clements-Port N.S. has been visiting his relatives in this area.

Coming events are the Haliburton County Book Sale of Duplicates and discards at the County Office beside the Haliburton Municipal Office, from 10-4 this week.

Then Saturday, July 28th, is the Art Show at Hyland Crest Auditorium; drop in after 1 and have a cup of tea and look over the display. Also at this time the oil painting by Dr. A. Jamieson will be raffled.

Our daughter and her family, the Reg Leamans of River Drive Park have been camping at South Lake and dropped in to see us several times.

Hot and humid, (sorry to mention it but we do need rain), cool most nights, for sleeping. Drive and boat safely. Cheerio until next time.

Ponies pull for Good Times

The pony draw was the newest addition to the Wilberforce Good Times held this past weekend.

A large crowd was in attendance on Sunday for both the pony and horse draws.

Men came from miles around to show their expertise with the teams.

The pancake breakfast, as usual, was delicious and many came out to enjoy the legion's cooking.

On Saturday the streets were lined for the parade made up of entertaining bands, majorettes, floats and bicycles.

The home and trade show gathered a large crowd in the curling rink while the Royal Ontario Museum museumobile drew a number of interested people downtown.

All in all it was a great weekend as only Wilberforce can provide.

Wow!! This young lad was quite attentive at the pony draws.

Hook 'em up It was all this helper could do to pull the ponies back a little to hook the willowtree onto the stone boat.

Light load One of the lighter loads that was pulled by the ponies in the afternoon.

Clip 'em close This man had to clip his pony's hoof before the draw because of a split in the foot.

Fresh vegetable Farm News and Views now available

Ontario farmland is just starting to yield its bountiful harvest. The fresh fruits and vegetables from our own soil are now on the grocer's shelf and shoppers will find the Ontario product to be fresher and less expensive, particularly at this time of the year. Here are some tips from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food when shopping for cabbage and cucumbers.

According to food specialists at the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, different varieties of cabbage are grown in Ontario, but the large majority are the green cabbages. A small percentage of savoy cabbage and red cabbage are also grown and will be available during the season.

The major cabbage-growing areas in the province include the Lynden Mill Grove (Hamilton) area, as well as Halton and Norfolk counties.

The largest portion of Ontario-grown cabbage goes to the fresh market, with about 20 to 25 percent going to be processed. A small amount of the cabbage will be put into storage so that fresh cabbage will be available through the winter months.

When purchasing green cabbage, look for firm heads that are heavy for their size, with crisp leaves. At home, cut a thin slice from the stalk. Wrap the cabbage in plastic and store in the refrigerator. For top quality use within two weeks.

Cabbage can be served either cold or hot. Coleslaw is a summer salad favorite for many a barbecue and summer meal. Shredded cabbage also goes well in tossed vegetable salads. Cabbage cooked and served with a grating of cheese is hard to resist. And of course, cabbage is a delicious jacket for cabbage rolls.

Ontario cucumbers

In Ontario, the major growing areas for field cucumbers grown for the fresh market include Essex, Halton, Peel, Norfolk and York counties, Mill Grove and Ottawa areas. Cucumbers grown for processing come mainly from the Essex, Kent, Oxford-Middlesex and Norfolk-Elgin counties. The majority of field cucumbers grown in Ontario are for processing.

Note that both pickling and eating cucumbers come from the same cucumber plant. The progressive maturity of the plant determines if the cucumbers will be used for pickling as gherkins (most tender), baby dills or dills, or for eating (mature cucumbers).

When selecting fresh field cucumbers for eating or pickling, choose reasonably straight, firm ones with a fairly uniform green color. To store cucumbers for fresh eating, wrap them in plastic and refrigerate. If you plan to pickle cucumbers, it is important to do so as soon as possible after picking or purchasing them, preferably within 24 hours.

Farmers are encouraged to be on the lookout for armyworms in corn and cereal grain fields. These worms are usually dark in colour with a white stripe on the side of its body and down the middle of its back. They can be up to 1 1/2 inches long.

Damage is usually first noticed at the edges of a field. The armyworm hides during the day and feeds in the evening. Chemical control is recommended when there are five to six larvae per square foot and armyworms are less than 1 1/2 inches long. Where the leaves have been stripped off the crop, there is no value in spraying.

The worms often move in large numbers from field to field. It is advisable to spray an invaded field. There are a number of sprays recommended, such as malathion, sevin and lannate.

Contact the Lindsay Agricultural Office for more information.

Cattlemen visit London

The annual bus trip for Victoria County Cattlemen visited the Beef Congress in London and toured Middlesex County last week. Thirty-five beef producers from the area participated.

The Beef Congress was sponsored by the Ontario Cattlemen's Association, and was the first event of this kind in the province. A number of commercial companies had exhibits of goods and services for beef producers. These exhibits helped participants learn new and different ideas for equipment, feeds, etc., and compare the products between companies quite easily.

A highlight of the Congress was the educational program featuring a variety of speakers under the theme "Facing the Future Profitably".

The Victoria Cattlemen toured several beef operations in Middlesex County, and were billeted overnight with Middlesex beef producers. Again, a lot of new ideas were picked up from the hosts during this visit.

While the group saw many fields with good crops while on the trip, everyone agreed that many corn fields here in Victoria County were equal to any that were seen.

Enjoying your cut flowers

Everybody enjoys the beauty of cut flowers and there is perhaps no other time of the year when indoor floral decorations are more common. With the many flower gardens just reaching their peak, now is an ideal time to bring some of nature's beauty indoors, or share them with a friend or shut-in. The following report from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food offers some hints on how to prolong the life of your colourful harvest.

Garden flowers can be brought indoors to give a summer whiff of perfume. To keep cut flowers as fresh as possible, an Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist gives a few tips.

"Cut the healthiest flowers just coming into bloom early in the morning or in the evening when it is cool," says Russell Gomme. "Using a sharp knife or pruners, cut on a slant so the flowers can easily absorb water."

If bringing insects into the home is a worry, hold the flowers upside down and gently shake them to dislodge ants or spiders.

The butt ends of hard-stemmed flowers, such as gladioli, should be crushed 2 1/2 to 5 centimeters (1 to 2 inches) from the bottom to increase water intake. The ends of milky-stemmed flowers should be charred with a candle flame.

Conditioning cut flowers is the key to prolonging their life indoors. Place cut flowers in a pail of warm water for three or four hours, then transfer them to cool water. Mr. Gomme says this hardening process allows flowers to tolerate their new home environment.

Any leaves that will be submerged below water should be removed before the flower stalks are placed in water. The stems should be shortened and the water should be changed daily. These practices help prevent bacteria growth that shortens the flowers' life.

Open-necked containers are preferable to narrow vases because they provide more room for water. Chances of flowers becoming thirsty are reduced.

Sometimes crooked stems can be a problem when arranging flowers. When conditioning them, wrap four or five stalks in newspaper. By the time they are ready for arranging, the newspaper can be discarded and the stalks will be straightened.

Using one or two different kinds of flowers in an arrangement can be attractive. The oriental way of flower arranging with fewer buds is becoming popular.

Mr. Gomme suggests using foliage, conditioned the same way as flowers, to accent these arrangements. Asparagus fern and baby's breath give a dainty effect. If broad leaves are desired for a bushier effect, euonymus, weigelia or mock orange leaves are ideal. Sprigs of periwinkle are suitable for arching.

"Placement of flower arrangements in the home is important," says Mr. Gomme. "Try to duplicate nature's environment by shading the flowers from direct sunlight during the day and placing them in a cool location at night."

Trent Severn Waterway News

Spectacular July weather (bad for farmers, ideal for boaters) has capped off the mid-season period, boosting boating use of Canada's major recreational waterway over the figures for last year.

Car gas line ups and soaring fuel prices may be taking their toll in the city, but when weekends and vacation time rolls around, it looks like nothing will stop boaters from getting the most use out of their craft.

There may be some conservation effects showing up -- lockages in the busy central section (the Kawarthas) are down slightly. The Kawartha locks traditionally show a high percentage of short and repeat trip boaters -- people going from one lake to the next for shopping, a visit, or just for a spin.

The southern and northern sections of the waterway, however, where longer boat trips and through traffic is the rule, show increased use.

The comparative figures for lockages are as follows, to the end of June: -

1978 1979

Southern area	4,469	5,457
Central area	13,588	13,310
Northern area	16,153	16,345

Water control

The dry spell is getting longer with little rain in July at most localities (except for a reported cloudburst in Bobcaygeon) so that evaporation is being felt over the whole of the Trent-Severn watersheds.

Storage remaining stood at 87% on July 16, down about 3% from July 9. Reservoir flows were increased only slightly over the previous week.

Kawartha Lakes levels, which appeared to profit from the patchy rainfall last weekend (July 14 and 15), began to wane as this week passed. On Thursday, the flow was further reduced from the Kawarthas to the minimum necessary for aesthetic quality and navigation.

Continuation of the hot dry weather will therefore require increased flows from the reservoirs next week (July 22-28).

Lakes Simcoe-Couchiching is continuing to run about 5 cm. below the desired "curve level" at 218.95 m. The flow of 18 cubic metres per second leaving the lake at Washago is normal summertime minimum.

Eating on the go

* Families on the vacation trail are finding that meals away from home may not be as fancy, but can be a lot more fun. The home economists for Union Carbide advise us to take special care with food where storage and transportation is involved. Here are some helpful hints for handling food while on the move.

* Pay particular attention to home-prepared foods containing eggs, mayonnaise, fish, poultry or meat. All these foods require good refrigeration and it is unwise to plan on long storage for them. Do not prepare or purchase food which might spoil more than four hours in advance of eating, unless you are able to refrigerate it or keep it frozen at the necessary temperature until you eat. Pack picnic bags inside the car and out of the direct rays of the sun, instead of in the trunk where temperatures are higher. Utilize frozen water containers or leak-proof bags of ice cubes for storing with foods in hampers until ready for serving.

* Tasty towers are a nice addition to your sandwich repertoire. Combine 2/3 cup (150 mL) mashed liver sausage, 1/2 cup (125 mL) chopped stuffed olives and 1/3 cup (75 mL) salad dressing. Spread this mixture on 6 slices of toast. Top each with a slice of Canadian cheese, a slice of tomato and a strip of cooked bacon. Broil the Towers until the bacon is crisp and the cheese is melted.

* Bologna and Sauerkraut Goulash is easy to prepare for families on the move. Sauté 1/2 pound (500 g) of bologna, cubed, and 1/4 cup (50 mL) of chopped onion in 2 tablespoons (30 mL) of butter or margarine until onion is limp. Add a 19 oz. (540 mL) can of sauerkraut (rinsed and drained), 1/2 cup (125 mL) sour cream, 1 teaspoon (5 mL) caraway seed, 1/4 teaspoon (1 mL) salt, 1/2 teaspoon (2 mL) paprika. Combine ingredients and warm over low heat, stirring occasionally, until heated through -- about 10 minutes. This recipe makes 4 servings.

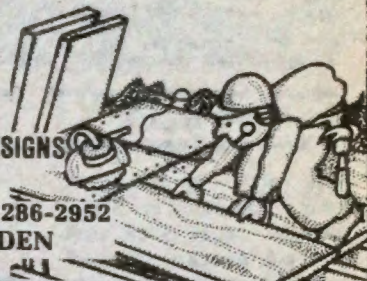

* Kids love to roast wieners over the glowing coals of a campfire. It's great fun, and they can finish up with toasted marshmallows for dessert. But never leave the children alone unsupervised. And teach them the right way to put out your fire, with lots of water and/or sand. Scatter the coals to make sure there are no glowing embers left.

* Don't neglect breakfast, even if you are in a hurry. You need a good meal in the morning to keep you going. Lunch meats can also be great at breakfast, and help provide the energy you need to make the most of your day.
